PUT THE FLY IN TRAP AND LET OURSELVES OUT

—Prof. C. F. Hodge

The first evening lecture before the Normal Summer school was given last evening by Prof. Clifton F. Hodge, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the very large audience.

The subject of the lecture was "The extermination of the house-fly," one of a series on "Civic Botany." Prof. Hodge said that civic biology is the name given a new course in high school biology intended for a training in citizenship, and the treatment of the evening's subject would be a concrete example of what is meant by the term. To deal with these subjects requires the cooperation of an entire community; they are not otherwise soluble. "The upward struggle towards wholesome living is one problem after another; but to work out one unifies and helps the next," he said.

Up to a few years ago the mosquito had taken its "blood tax" down through the ages. Animals took to their holes and to the mud and the water and the brush-pile and humans fled behind mosquito netting. These maneuvers might have lasted until now, had it not been discovered that mosquitoes carried malaria. It then constituted a problem which had to be solved.

The key to the solution of the fly problem was suggested by one of Professor Hodge's children when he said, "Why don't we put the fly in the trap and let ourselves out?" As to the size of the problem, lest it be thought trifling, a recent report of the Indiana board of health cited the case of a family of six children in which five had died before reaching the age of two years, and the cause of the deaths should have been stated, 'poisoned by flies,' so diabolically suited to the propagation of flies were the surroundings of the house. Forty-nine thousand children under two years die annually from cholera infantum, or summer complaint, which is a result of the fly pest.

The task of eradicating flies in Worcester was one in which the public school children and the students of Clark University all cooperated. Worcester was "cut in a pie" and the students in his college class went over their apportionment block by block. On a map they placed an "A" to mark every spot which was found conducive to the breeding of flies. Then from the doctors he secured the location of all cases of malaria and placed them on the map also. There was an exact correspondence between the two. A public lecture was then given on these findings; the board of trade then demanded a talk on the subject; soon his charts and findings were demanded in Washington; they appeared in "Country Life in America"; and presently they came out in a paper in Japan, so that in less than six months the report had circled the globe.

Next the school children were introduced to the work. With oil contributed by the different neighborhoods and loaded on to little express wagons, the pupils visited every spot marked with an "A" and poured oil thereon. So interested did the city become in the success which attended this activity that a brook in the town whose picturesqueness had been ruined by its having been made a repository for tin cans, dead cats and every conceivable kind of rubbish was cleaned out by the city and lined with cement at a large cost, which however has been fully justified, for it opened up a large tract for residence purposes which has previously been uninhabitable.

European cities, Prof. Hodge observed, are very safe. Munich was cited as an admirable example. But he threw on the screen many charts showing how high the typhoid line runs in American cities in the season when flies are most prevalent. Other charts showed that typhoid practically always abounds in certain cities.

In one instance 224 cases of typhoid had been traced to one day's delivery of milk, and the picture of the wide-open shanty where the cows were milked and the breeding places for flies which existed all about constituted a most convincing "exhibit." Prof. Hodge had given his son a dollar on one occasion for catching all the flies which he found over one cow in a single day. They completely filled a quart can and by actual count totalled 10,211. They probably drew a pint of blood from that cow in a day. Prof. Hodge described the pleasing habit of flies when alighting on a substance like candy or frosting of moistening it with saliva and of course leaving behind them some of this moisture.

Plan For Boys To Get Cheap Outing

Professor Clark W. Hetherington who is interested in the Playground movement and a member of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, has suggested a plan by which poor boys may get outings in the country, engage in Boy Scout activities, and at the same time make more than enough money to pay their expenses. In trips through the West and the central West, he has found that the farmers cannot get enough hands to help in picking fruit. He suggests that boys in their trips into the country spend part of the day helping farmers pick the fruit crops, and in that way get all the food that they need for their camping.

Writing from California, Professor Hetherington says: "The discussion concerning the labor to pick the fruit has became serious. Why not meet this situation and help the boys under Scout organization to have an outing. There are in all of our cities in congested districts thousands of boys who cannot have an outing unless under charitable auspices. These boys could be organized, taken to the country on a long outing and make the undertaking support itself by having the work a half day and carry on their Scout activities for half a day. They could be organized into two groups, each alternating in a half day's work, so that the work would go on through the day. From queries in Michigan and here, I find that farmers would be delighted to have this work done. The only question would be easily guaranteed under Scout organization. Why not formulate this so that thousands of boys could have an outing and pay their way?

Drops Dead While on Visit.

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 30. — William Shandrew, a prominent retired merchant of this city who went to Elgin, Ill., a few days ago to visit his daughter, fell dead in that city. When Mr. Shandrew left Kalamazoo he was in perfect health and his sudden death created great surprise here. For over a score of years he conducted one of the largest hardware stores in this part of the state, retiring about a year ago. Apoplexy is said to have been the cause of death.

84 WIRE MEN ARE INDICTED

Accused of Having Offended against Sherman Law.

THIRTY-FIVE COMPANIES IN NET

Many Firms Most Prominent in Business and Capitalists Connected with Them Are Named in True Bills.

New York, June 30.—Eighty-four wire manufacturers, representing thirty-five companies, were indicted by the federal grand jury on the ground that they had offended against the Sherman anti-trust law in having formed nine pooling associations which were alleged to have acted in restraint of trade.

The American Steel and Wire company, one of the largest subsidiary concerns of the United States Steel corporation, was declared to have been represented in seven of the pooling associations and its president, William P. Palmer, was indicted seven times. The name of John A. Roebling's Sons company appears in eight indictments. On the list also are the General Electric company, the National Conduit and Cable company, the Standard Underground Cable company, the American Horseshoe company and the Hazard Manufacturing company.

In the list of defendants appear the names of Frank J. Gould, Erskine Hewitt, secretary of the embassy, sent to London for Queen Victoria's jubilee; Herbert Satterlee, son-in-law of J. P. Morgan, who gets in because he is president of the Habirshaw Wire company; Charles F. Brooker, vice president of the Ansonia Brass and Copper company, and Republican national committeeman from Connecticut; Karl and Ferdinand Roebling; Edwards Perot, who is president of the National Conduit and Cable company.

Frank Gould gets in on the score of his being president of the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works. Others are LeBaron C. Colt, of Rhode Island, and Edwin E. Jackson, Jr., a lawyer. Mr. Jackson was indicted nine times on the ground that he was supervisor of all nine pools. Ferdinand Roebling was named eight times and Joseph M. Marsh, president of the Standard Underground Cable company, was indicted six times.

The indictments cover the whole field of the wire industry, including electrical cables, steel and copper wire, wire nails and horseshoes. The government alleges that the nine associations controlled from 70 to 95 per cent of the business in their respective departments.

The investigation looking to present proceedings began early last May. The matter was in the hands of the United States attorney and assistant attorney. They called upwards of eighty witnesses, avoiding those closely allied with the conduct of the associations, so that these men would not be able to plead immunity in case of indictment.

They got hold of much correspondence of the members of the association, some of which bore recent dates In the indictments the government does not allege that the associations are now existing Most of them went out of business in 1909. But the correspondence is said to indicate that the members of the associations have carried out in most details the intent for which the associations were formed.

ASSESSMENT PLAN UNPOPULAR

Meeting of Labor Leaders in Indianapolis Is Secret, but Proceedings Are So Animated They Penetrate Walls.

Indianapolis, June 30.—One hundred officials of organized labor, including the heads of many international unions, met here to devise means for raising a defense fund for John J. and James B. McNamara, now in jail at Los Angeles, Cal., under indictment for dynamiting.

It was freely admitted before the meeting opened that but little money had been subscribed to the fund that was started at the time of the arrests, some of the subscriptions then telegraphed here being unauthorized and some of the promises made at the same time being unfulfilled.

Some of the leaders said there was urgent need for such a fund and unless it was raised some of the lawyers already employed would have to be dispensed with. The meeting was secret, but the discussions were so animated that the speeches could be heard in the hall outside. After a long debate in which it was suggested that an assessment be levied on all unions and much opposition to this plan developed, a committee was appointed to submit a plan and an adjournment was taken for three hours.

When the conference again assembled the assessment plan was again suggested, but it was finally determined to make an appeal to the unions of all organizations to raise 10 cents per capita and forward to the national or international headquarters to be turned into the fund.

Some of the organizations will levy assessments of that amount on each member.

FIRE LOSS AT PORT HURON

Blaze in Business Section Does $100,000 Damage.

Port Huron, Mich., June 30.— One of the most destructive fires that has visited this city for many years occurred in the center of the downtown business district and it is estimated that $100,000 will just cover the loss.

The fire was first noticed by Police Sergeant Shine about 3 o'clock in the morning at the rear of a large junk shop owned by Louis Levine. Every company of the fire department responded but could not do much to check the flames, which got a fine start from the old rags, rubbers and bales of paper that were stored in the building. The large hardware store of Beard, Campbell & Co. was the next to go. This firm was the heaviest loser, its loss amounting to over $70,000, partly insured. The south portion of the Union hotel was completely ruined by water and smoke and two of the femals guests fainted in their frantic endeavor to escape.

The fire then spread to the buildings occupied by Smith Bros.' grocery store, the largest concern of its kind in Port Huron; Conkleman's cafe Levi White's and Gus Fenner's saloons, the Parra millinery, the Truesdell Marble & Granite Monument company, where thousands of dollars' worth of valuable stones were destroyed, the American Clothing System company, and the Bricker block, which contains many offices.

Three of the above places were entirely wiped out, while the rest escaped with damage caused from smoke and water. The home of J. T. Waters, manager of the White Star Line boats at this port, was also burned, and with all his household goods. The fire raged fiercely for over six hours.

MAYOR IS IMPLICATED

Alleged that Minnesota Official Is Safe Blower.

Testimony of Wounded Postoffice Robber Connects Respected Citizen with Crime.

Bemidji, Minn., June 30.—Martin Behan, who was arrested after being wounded during the fight at Puposky June 16, when an attempt was made to rob the postoffice, testified in the hearing here of Dr. D. E. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, who is charged with being at the head of the gang of safe blowers, that Dumas, Behan and Mike Davis planned the robbery in a Bemidji saloon.

Behan testified that he, Dr. Dumas, Davis and R. E. Symth, owner of the Puposky postoffice building, met June 14 at Bemidji. Smyth, according to Behan, asked Davis if he would burn the building at Puposky and Davis said he would do the job if there was enough money in it. To this Dumas is alleged to have replied that there would be enough money.

Both Dr. Dumas and Smyth spoke of blowing the safe and taking money, stamps and papers to Dumas after the building had been burned, according to the witness. Behan also identified a large revolver which he said Dumas had given Davis.

FRIDAY, JUNE 30, 1911

WHAT WE APPLAUD.

We find it an interesting study in ideals to observe in a representative audience what the people applaud. This applause is usually the unstudied, the natural, spontaneous manifestation of feeling, if it is the untutored expression of approval. It was a helpful and inspiring sight in University Hall yesterday at commencement time to see where the present generation is laying the emphasis. It was apparent that we are approving unselfish public service today and honoring it and rewarding it. Worth, and not wealth, is coming into its own.

Of all the worthy men to receive honorary degrees at the hands of the University yesterday, two stood out conspicuously from all the rest in the general applause which was occorded them when they were handed their diplomas. The applause for Governor Osborn was a decided ovation. University Hall was jammed to the doors. It rose as one to honor the governor, and the applause was continued after the governor had taken his seat for some time and until he was forced to rise and acknowledge this appreciation of him. President Hutchins, in presenting him with high honoary degree of Bachelor of Laws, differentiated him and his service, which justified the University in granting the degree, in these words, "Governor Chase S. Osborn in a large way a man of affairs, a man of action and purpose, a man of power, of ideas and of ideals, a journalist, traveler and author, and one who, as regent of this university, rendered the institution distinguished service and now a vigilant and patriotic chief magistrate of the state."

It is to be noted that Governor Osborn is not an alumnus of the University, except now in this honorary degree way. As the governor has said, he graduated in the wood-pile, and yet both Olivet and the University of Michigan have granted him the degree of Bachelor of Laws this month. And the people are not slow to recognize ability of a high order and that which has been carved out of the raw material, constituting in the main the obstacles overcome and characterized by unselfish public sevice.

Alex Dow of Detroit was the other to receive the largest amount of applause and he also was not an alumnus of the university, as we understand it; nor has he a degree from any educational institutions except that of experience. Yet he has carved his way into a niche and justified the university in granting him this honorary degree.

The fact though which the rising generation ought not to lose sight of is that these men have risen in spite of their handicaps and not because of them. It would be a tremendous blunder for the young man to reason that because these men who are not graduates of any college have received these honorary degrees, therefore the way to get an honorary degree is to shun school. These two men are the strongest advocates of the college education. They have become educated and cultured beyond most of their fellows, but they appreciate how great a help a college education would have been to them and how it would have enriched their lives at the present time. The vast majority of those who are honored with honorary degrees are those who have had the aid of college training. But the encouraging thing we ought to carry along with us to help strengthen our ideals is that American citizenship today is putting its stamp of approval upon worth and not upon wealth, and that unselfish public service brings its reward in the long run and its remuneration as it is being rendered and is really one of the best investments a citizen can make for himself, for his family, for the community in which he lives, and for the state,—all of which need much of this service if the civilization of today is to deliver to the civilization of tomorrow what it owes it, judged by the obligations imposed upon us by the civilization of yesterday.

EDWARD HINES ON THE STAND

Chicago Man Tells of His Efforts to Elect Lorimer.

PRESIDENT'S NAME BROUGHT IN

Governor Deneen Is Also Mentioned—Lumberman Denies Saying He Had "All Money Necessary" to Put His Man Over.

Washington, June 30.—Edward Hines of Chicago, president of the Edward Hines Lumber company, told the senate committee which is investigating charges of corruption in Senator Lorimer's election that President Taft, through Nelson W. Aldrich, former senator from Rhode Island, had favored Mr. Lorimer's candidacy and had practically forced the election upon Lorimer.

At first, Mr. Hines testified, President Taft and Senator Aldrich were merely in favor of breaking the senatorial deadlock in the Illinois legislature for five months from January to May, 1909, by the election of a Republican senator. Later, he added, the president and Senator Aldrich must have obtained information that Lorimer was the only candidate upon whom the opposition could unite and then they backed Senator Lorimer's candidacy.

In reply to a question, Mr. Hines admitted that he had never seen President Taft personally, but that all his information in regard to the president's attitude had come from Senator Aldrich, who went to the White House late one night in May, 1909, shortly before the senatorial election, to discuss the Illinois situation with Mr. Taft. The president himself has denied emphatically that he ever favored the election of Lorimer. He has said that efforts were made to draw him into the Illinois fight, but he had not gone further than to express the desire that a Republican be chosen

Senator Aldrich promised to go on the stand and answer Hines. It is charged that the unautherized use of the president's name was a political trick of the Lorimer forces to ensure Lorimer's election.

"Senator Aldrich," said Mr. Hines, "told me that the president was anxious to have the deadlock in the Illinois legislature settled and a Republican elected. Senator Aldrich asked me to telephone Mr. Lorimer, who was at Springfield and use my influence to persuade him to become a candidate for senator. I did so."

Mr. Hines said he went to Chicago and from a bank there called up Mr. Lorimer at Springfield again. At this conversation Mr. Lorimer asked him to call up Governor Deneen and explain to him President Taft's attitude. About this time, Mr. Hines testified, he received a telegram from his office that Wirt H. Cook of Duluth, and William O'Brien of St. Paul, wished to see him at the Grand Pacific hotel. Mr. Hines instructed the telephone girl at his office to call Mr. Lorimer on a long distance at Springfield. Hines went to the Grand Pacific and talked with Mr. Lorimer from Cook's room. Hines said he told Lorimer that he had just had a phone conversation with Governor Deneen and that the governor had promised to assist him.

Mr. Hines told Lorimer he would come to Springfield if necessary to aid his candidacy. This is the telephone conversation in which, according to Mr. Cook's recent testimony, Hines said that he would go to Springfield with all the money required to elect Lorimer. Hines denied Cook's version of the telephone conversation.

BANDITS BLOW MAIL CAR SAFE

Threats of Death Fail to Make Him Open His Car—After Robbing the Mail Car the Robbers Make Their Escape.

Glendale, Ore., June 30.—Posses are seeking in this wild mountainous country two robbers who, mistaking the first section of north-bound passenger train No. 16 on the Southern Pacific railroad for a south-bound train said to be carrying a shipment of $400,000 in gold dust from Seattle to San Francisco, held up the north-bound train near West Fork, an isolated station in Cow Creek canyon.

The robbers rifled the mail car, blowing up the safe, and made away with the registered mail. They tried to secure entrance to the express car, but were foiled by Messenger Robb, who refused to open the door, despite threats that they would use dynamite if he resisted.

The robbers, after fruitlessly prying with a crowbar at the side door of the car, finally desisted and decamped with the loot secured from the mail car. The amount secured by the robbers can not be ascertained.

This train carries in its registered mail the cash from southern Oregon postoffices to Eugene, Ore., where is their depository, and this was probaby included in the mail stolen.

The robbers boarded the train at West Fork while the engine was taking water. Soon after it had got under way they crawled over the tender into the cab and directed the engineer to stop the train.

This done, one of the men kept the engineer and fireman under cover of his revolver, while the other went back and uncoupled the mail, baggage and express cars. Then the engineer was ordered to pull these cars some distance up the track, where he was again ordered to stop. The robbers went back to the mail car and, lining the mail clerks up, took the registered mail pouches and dynamited the mail car safe.

The noise of the explosion warned Messenger Robb of what was taking place, and when the demand came for him to open his door he made no response, and they tried to pry open the door with a crowbar. After finding that they were only wasting time, they decamped, leaving the engine and cars on the Cow Creek siding.

In the meantime, the conductor of the train, as soon as he discovered what had taken place, went back to West Fork, where he notified Glendale and surrounding points. Posses have been organized to pursue the outlaws.

CONVENTION DELEGATES HAVE GOOD TIME IN DETROIT

When Detroit Endeavorers went to Battle Creek last year and captured the State Convention for 1911, they immediately organized a splendid convention committee and adopted as their slogan the "Unexcelled Convention." They set to work at once to realize their aim. It has been not only the unexcelled—it is the surpassing convention, the climax of a splendid series. The local committee deserves unstinted praise for their arduous and unselfish labors.

The convention began auspiciously. The beautiful convention auditorium, the First Congregational church, was filled with an eager company. After an inspiring praise service, Dean Marquis and Mr. Egbert Hayes, chairman of the Detroit Committee, happily voiced the welcome of the churches and the Endeavorers. State President Hubbell, of Adrian, responded to these cordial greetings.

Ex-Governor Hanly of Indiana delivered the opening address, which was a masterful plea for peace and arbitration. A torrent of applause greeted Mr. Hanly as he closed his plea for world-wide peace.

The program talent was of international convention calibre. In fact, it was an international convention condensed into Michigan. Dr. Ira Landreth, of Tennessee, big in heart and brain, brought mighty messages from the Southland.

For the first time in many years the delegates were entertained free on the Harvard plan. The delightful hospitality of Detroit was most heartily enjoyed by the delegates.

The outlook is most hopeful. The delegates and the State officers look forward to the best year yet.

PUT THE FLY IN

The constant cleaning of his feet by a fly in order that he may better adhere to a window-pane and other such substances is another process by which loathsome particles are carried everywhere.

The amazing rate at which flies multiply was stated. One pair of flies beginning in April might be the progenitors by the time August came of over 191,000,000,000,000,000,000 flies, if one-eighth of a cubic inch were allowed to a fly, this would cover the globe with flies 47 feet deep. Of couse they don't all live, happily. Anyone who can think this equotion will have common sense enough to kill that pair of flies in April, the speaker thought.

He then described the trap which he has devised for the catching of flies. A cover larger than the garbage pail is fitted with the trap on top. The fly, attracted by its favorite food which abides in garbage cans preferably, enters underneath the projection of the cover or just below the trap. He feeds and then rises to the point of light above, which is the trap itself, and there he stays caught. Sixteen thousand flies were caught in one place. fly-tight garbage cans simply drive the flies to the table. Fly-tight stable cellars are also a fallacy, for the reasons that when a stable is cleansed the cellar is opened and countless flies come forth and these eggs in the first place are laid in the manure while warm and before being deposited in the cellar. Ninety-seven per cent of fly eggs are laid in manure. He showed how by the use of guide strips the flies could be decopey into traps placed properly by the stable cellar.

It is Professor Hodge's ambition that his own town of Worcester, Mass., shall be known as the first flyless city in the world, and the prospects are bright for its achieving this distinction, such a resistless warfare is being continuously waged there against this serious nuisance.

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. Sallie Stevens, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman.

Huntington, Mass.—"I was in a nervous, run down condition and for three years could find no help.

"I owe my present good health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier which I believe saved my life.

"My doctor knows what helped me and does not say one word against it."—Mrs. Mari Janette Bates, Box 134, Huntington, Mass.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

HORSE LEFT BY J. E. ENGLE CAUSES MUCH EXCITEMENT

This morning as J. E. Engle's horse was standing in front of a building on East Congress street it was frightened by a passing automobile and started to run up the hill. It struck C. D. O'Connor's rig which was near the bridge, frightening his horse which also started up the street.

O'Connor's horse was caught by a posserby without its doing any damage but the horse belonging to Engle continued on its way to Davis & Kishlar's corner where it ran into a horse and carriage as it was just turning on Huron street. The horse which was owned by Mrs. Lambie was thrown onto the curbing. Mrs. Lambie who was seated in the carriage at the time was badly frightened but escaped without injury. The harness and carriage were somewhat damaged.

Will Double Money Invested.

The marvelous growth of Detroit shows how money has been doubled when put into real estate. The opportunities for large profits are just as good at present. The State Metropolis is extending its lines continuously and rapidly, and real estate in that city is bound to increase heavily in price and to keep on increasing. While real estate is one of the safest investments known, in Detroit it is not only safe but certain to produce great gains. Fortunes will be made in a few years by those who are foresighted enough to take advantage of the opportunities offered in the State Metropolis.
